About Us

PCG provides consulting services on police oversight with a focus in advocacy of civilian oversight of law enforcement. We aim to transform traditional policing approaches with a solutions based approach by prioritizing community engagement, transparency, accountability, and equity. We also provide leadership and consulting services tailored to meet the unique needs of organizations across various industries. We offer comprehensive solutions to help organizations optimize their operations, mitigate risks, and achieve strategic objectives.

Our Team

Our team was built specifically to respond to the issues highlighted in the RFP. Our team members have run police departments, transformed organizations and agencies, worked on police reform efforts from multiple angles, and have extensive community building skills. Our team includes three full-time certified practitioners of police oversight with experience in both a review board model and a full-time staff that monitors the work of Internal Affairs. Brian Corr is a past president of NACOLE, Bart Logue is a current board member of NACOLE, and Luvimae Omana is an attorney certified practitioner of oversight. As practitioners in oversight, part of our mission is to bridge the gap between the community and law enforcement. We have international diplomatic experience as well as robust community engagement skills and methodologies which will ensure that the Oak Park community voices are not only heard, but elevated, listened to, and included in this process.

Brian Corr

Brian Corr is a government and nonprofit professional with more than 35 years of work experience in the fields of social justice, civil rights, social resilience, and community building on the national, state, and local levels. Just prior to joining the municipal government, Mr. Corr worked as the first statewide field organizer for the ACLU of Massachusetts, where he organized "civil liberties task forces" across the state, including one focused on civilian oversight in response to allegations of police misconduct and racial profiling in the City of Lawrence. Mr. Corr also worked with community members impacted by violence when he was a board member of the Louis D. Brown Peace Institute.

Mr. Corr is a Certified Practitioner of Oversight. He holds certifications in Group Crisis Intervention and Post-Traumatic Stress Management/Psychological First Aid and has completed the Police Chaplain Twelve Core Courses Training through the International Conference of Police Chaplains, and has also completed a 35-hour train-the-trainer session in Trauma-Informed Policing. ## Proposed Scope of Service

Phase 1: Conduct a Needs Assessment

PCG is well equipped to conduct a needs assessment. As civilian oversight practitioners, community outreach is a necessary component in our work. Mr. Corr has over 35 years of work experience in social justice issues and community building. From 2021-2023, Mr. Corr created and implemented civilian oversight in Bennington, Vermont and also was the lead subject-matter expert and advisor for Arlington County, Virginia as it developed its first civilian oversight agency. As Executive Director of the Cambridge Peace Commission, Mr. Corr was a subject matter expert on a Task Force to Examine the Future of Public Safety in 2021. There he supported a community-member based committee to examine ways to reform community safety in Cambridge by mitigating police response to select calls for service, while enhancing community cohesion to include restorative practices. This Task Force researched best practices from the US and Canada, held a series of community conversations to hear the needs and concerns, and desires of the community regarding public safety, and made recommendations to the city.

Most recently, our team reviewed the New Orleans Office of the Independent Monitor (OIPM). In the review, we spoke with over a dozen stakeholders for the civilian oversight office for law enforcement. This included OIPM staff, members of the board that oversees the OIPM, community members, elected officials, police officers, and a police attorney. We evaluated their home rule charter, memorandum of understanding with the New Orleans Police Department, and other governing authorities. We then evaluated the OIPM's compliance with their governing authorities.

Similarly, PCG will begin with an evaluation of the Village's governing authorities to build a framework of the expectations placed on the Citizen Police Oversight Committee. Then PCG will engage with the stakeholders for input and their perspective. PCG's evaluation of strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats will be based on a combination of stakeholder feedback and best practices of other civilian oversight agencies with a similar structure.

Timeline: 2 months

Phase 2: Identify Best Practices

Our team works closely with NACOLE. Mr. Corr is a past president of NACOLE and remains active with the organization and Mr. Logue is a current board member. In 2023, Mr. Logue developed NACOLE's peer review template. NACOLE uses this template when called upon to evaluate how a civilian oversight agency's governing authorities and practices conform to NACOLE's Principles of Effective Oversight. The template assists in making recommendations for effective practices covering: the complaint process, communication with complainants, independence, boards and commissions, access to information, staffing, training, investigations, auditing, monitoring, reviewing investigations, data and policy analysis, issuing recommendations, reporting and transparency, retaliation and confidentiality, community outreach and inclusion, and evaluation.

PCG will make recommendations on best practices based on research on local and state, regional, and national best practices and will identify what model is the best fit for the Village.

PCG is not only familiar with the best practices in oversight, but a team member developed NACOLE's evaluation template for assessing other civilian oversight agencies. Further, since PCG members work closely with NACOLE, we are kept abreast of emerging best practices and innovative solutions that civilian oversight agencies across the country are using.

Phase 3: Consultation and Collaboration

Our team has extensive experience in working with various stakeholders. Mr. Corr has extensive experience in community work. Mr. Corr's work with the Peace Commission involves working with other municipal agencies, communities of faith, non-profit organizations, and the community as a whole to: build connections and strengthen relationships; promote positive dialogue and foster understanding; and coordinate compassionate community responses to support recovery and healing in the wake of traumatic events and violence affecting Cambridge and its residents. In 2022, Mr. Corr held community listening sessions in San Jose and San Leandro for their police department's response to George Floyd protests.

Mr. Logue and Ms. Omana's work requires collaboration with various stakeholders to be successful. As the Ombuds and Deputy Ombuds, respectively, they are charged with bridging the gap between the community and the police which requires collaboration with both parties as well as elected officials. This means one-on-one meetings with community members, maintaining relationships with community members who encounter reoccurring issues involving the police, and attending community events. This also includes, bringing up cases with the police that are of great community impact and reviewing complaints, use of force, collision, and pursuit cases and then providing recommendations to improve police policies, procedures, and training to enhance police tactics, techniques, and response to the community.

PCG is confident we can facilitate meaningful consultation sessions and workshops with key stakeholders to gather feedback and insights, fostering open dialogue to ensure diverse perspectives are included and represented. PCG will ensure intentional inclusion of members of historically marginalized communities that have been disparately impacted by the government and police policies.

Phase 4: Recommendation Development

Our team routinely writes reports that include research on local and state laws and best practices. Mr. Logue and Ms. Omana have written 17 closing reports that included 83 policy and training recommendations to the police department. Approximately 85% of those recommendations have been accepted and implemented in full or in part by the Spokane Police Department. Those recommendations are based on research on policy reviews of other jurisdictions, best practices provided by major organizations in the policing and oversight fields such as NACOLE, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), or Department of Justice's Community Oriented Policing Services Office. Our recommendations are also informed by training opportunities that keep us abreast of the latest legal updates and emerging best practices. Our team stays abreast of emerging national best practices by attending and regularly presenting at the NACOLE annual conference in addition to attending other training opportunities regularly, which includes: the IACP conference, IACP law officer section's spring training, US Ombudsman Association conference, and Daigle Law Group training opportunities (Internal Affairs training, Technology Summit, and First Amendment Summit).

PCG will provide the Village a comprehensive set of recommendations for enhancing civilian oversight based on the needs assessment, best practices, and stakeholder input. The recommendations will use NACOLE's 13 Principles of Effective Oversight as a guide to address not only transparency, community engagement, training, policy development, and accountability mechanisms but other areas identified that ensure the effectiveness of the Citizen Police Oversight Committee.

Phase 5: Report and Presentation

As discussed above, our team has a great deal of experience in preparing reports and engaging with the community. Our members have presented regularly at NACOLE annual conferences. Mr. Logue has also been invited to participate in a workshop at Harvard Kennedy School Government Performance Lab in October for best practices in oversight of law enforcement. He has also presented to the United States Ombudsman Association regarding investigations in oversight and at the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs on the importance of oversight. Mr. Logue and Ms. Omana present annually to the Spokane City Council and have also presented oversight model opportunities to the Pierce County, Washington, County Council.

Mr. Corr's decades long experience with community organization includes being a Statewide Field Organizer and Public Education Coordinator for the ACLU. There, he created and nurtured grassroots "civil liberties task forces" across Massachusetts. He built community education programs, identified leaders, carried out training, and outreach efforts. He spoke at public events, panels, rallies, and the media. Mr. Corr also developed, planned, and created presentations for the inaugural International Conference on the Democratic Control of Policing in Puebla City, Mexico.

PCG is prepared to prepare a detailed report outlining our findings, recommendations, and proposed action plans and present the report to stakeholders in a digestible format that highlights key findings and actionable steps.

Additional Services

PCG is prepared to provide additional services to the Village, as needed, including technical services, as needed, staff and Commission training, hiring consultation, and leadership development. Mr. Corr has conducted several organizational training and strategic planning as well as training for civilian oversight investigators. Mr. Corr has conducted training in Berkeley, CA; Boston, MA; Fairfax County, VA; Bennington, VT; Newark, NJ; Easthampton, MA; Spokane, WA; and Cambridge-Yerevan Sister City Association.

Mr. Logue has extensive experience in organizational management. As the Provost Marshal for the Marine Corps Air Station in Beaufort, South Carolina, he served as the senior law enforcement representative and special staff officer responsible for the operation of the Provost Marshal's Office for two Marine Corps installations, with a population of more than 50,000 Marines, civilians, and family members, and a housing area for approximately 2000 families, managing a budget of over $5 million a year. He supervised all sections within the police department, providing senior leadership, vision, and guidance to 240 police personnel, and managed the recruitment, hiring and promotion process for over 100 civilian police officers. This spring, Mr. Logue was on the selection committee for hiring the new Police Chief and Fire Chief in Spokane, WA.

Mr. Logue is passionate about leadership development. In Spokane, Mr. Logue has been a member of Leadership Spokane Board of Directors since 2019 and was the Chair from 2021-2023. Leadership Spokane is a non-profit organization that hosts a 10-month program that cultivates personal growth, professional, development, and community service. The program also develops a broad knowledge of the Spokane community and key issues facing the region. PCG has also executive leadership coaching and conducted a leadership retreat for the Outreach and Care Team for Valley Real Life in Greenacres, WA.
